DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

1. Receipt is acknowledged of applicant's amendment and response, filed 16 May 2005. To clarify the record at this point in the prosecution, claims 1-16 are pending.

Drawings

2. The drawings filed on 16 March 2004 are acceptable subject to correction of the informalities indicated on the attached "Notice of Draftsperson's Patent Drawing Review," PTO-948. In order to avoid abandonment of this application, correction is required in reply to the Office action. The correction will not be held in abeyance.

Response to Arguments

3. Applicant's arguments, filed in the above-mentioned response, with respect to the rejections set-forth in the prior Office action, have been fully considered.

While applicant has not explicitly defined the term "vapor phase aluminiding," the term does have an art-recognized meaning that is distinct from the pack process taught by Milaniak (see, for example, US 6,881,439 B2, cited by applicant in support of this position). Conventional vapor phase aluminiding utilizes a vapor source remote from the substrate to be coated, while the conventional pack process requires intimate contact of the vapor source with the substrate (i.e., the substrate is packed or buried in the vapor source). However, as is readily apparent even from the US 6,881,439 B2 reference cited by applicant, these two processes produce equivalent results. It is the examiner's position that, because these two processes are art-recognized equivalents, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to substitute one for the other (MPEP § 2144.06). Consequently, this argument is not persuasive.

Art Unit: 1762

As to the question of whether it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to substitute tape for slurry in the process of Milaniak, applicant's argument is persuasive. Milaniak expressly states that a slurry is used in order to adequately coat the "complex internal passageways" of the substrate. In other words, the slurry can flow into and coat all of the otherwise inaccessible parts of the complex internal passageways. Further, Kircher (US 6,730,179 B2) teaches that uniform coatings on inaccessible portions of a substrate are difficult to achieve utilizing coating tape (2:46-53), suggesting that one of ordinary skill in the art may not have had a reasonable expectation of successfully substituting coating tape for coating slurry in order to coat the inaccessible regions of the substrate of Milaniak. Because tape requires selective and deliberate placement by the artisan, because the prior art neither teaches nor suggests the placement of tape in such "complex internal passageways," and because there is some suggestion that substituting tape for the slurry would not successfully coat these passageways, the rejections set-forth in the prior Office action are withdrawn.

Allowable Subject Matter

4. Claims 1-16 are allowed.
5. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: The closest prior art was set-forth in the prior Office action. As detailed above, the rejections over this art have been withdrawn. Consequently the claims are in condition for allowance.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
